Broadcasting Cablecasting

Yearbook 1985

The 1985 Broadcasting/Cablecasting Yearbook shares with its predecessors the distinction of being the most comprehensive directory to the Fifth Estate. It covers the history and continuing growth of every field in the industry. To acquaint readers with the structure of the Yearbook, and to assist in locating information, the editors have provided general descriptions of each of the nine major sections: The Fifth Estate, Radio, Television, Cable, Satellites, Programing, Advertising and Marketing, Technology, and Professional Services. In addition, the editorial index, expanded to be even more inclusive, begins on the following page. The general index is followed by an index to advertisers in the 1985 Yearbook. These are grouped according to service. Finally, each of the nine sections has a complete index on the first page of the section.

Section A— begins with "The Fifth Estate," the history and evolution of the broadcasting media. The "Short Course in Broadcasting" (A-2) provides a capsulized summary of the industry. A description of emerging technologies begins on page A-6, reviewing recent and ongoing developments in broadcast technology. A subsection on Law and Regulation follows on page A-8, covering the Federal Communications Commission. It includes an organization chart of the FCC, names of its staff members, an extract of its principal rules and a guide to station application procedure. Government agencies of interest to the Fifth Estate are listed in a directory beginning on page A-32. A list of state Cable regulatory agencies follows. The Group Ownership directory, page A-34, is a list of individuals and companies with multiple station holdings. Section A concludes with the directory of newspaper/magazine crossownership and crossownership by station.

Section B— The Radio section of the Yearbook begins with the directory of AM and FM stations in the United States, followed by stations in U.S. territories, Canada, FM stations in the United States, followed by stations in U.S. territories, Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean. Information on U.S. International Radio, the Voice of America, American Forces Radio and Television Service (AFRTS), and Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL) is included here. Listings provide call letters, address, telephone number, programing information, and names of principal executives. Next, a directory lists all counties of license with county or market population figures. Cross-reference lists of AM and FM stations by call letters and frequencies for the U.S. and Canada follow this directory. Following these lists is the table of FM assignments. This section concludes with information on world radio and television, including stations and transmitters used for international and armed forces programs.

Section C— This is the Television section of the Yearbook. The first part, "The Facilities of Television," begins with detailed directories of TV stations, addresses, telephone numbers, names of principal executives, with cross-references to the appropriate ADI's (Areas of Dominant Influence). Among the other features of this section are lists of U.S. and Canadian stations by call letters and channels, the table of TV assignments, a complete history of TV station transfers, a list of pending TV station applications, and information on experimental TV and subscription TV stations. There is also a section on Low Power TV (LPTV), listing LPTV grants, licensees, addresses and principal executives. The second part of Section C, "The Television Marketplace," describes the commercial aspects of the medium, and has as its primary feature the "ADI Market Atlas," a 74-page section showing each of the 211 ADI's according to Arbitron Television. It is complete with coverage maps, and other important market rankings. Concluding the section are tables of market ranking by size, markets by Nielson Marketing Research, and network delivery variations by market.

Section D— The Cable section of the Yearbook contains detailed information on cable systems throughout the United States and Canada. The "Anatomy of Cable Regulation" opens the section with an outline of federal cable television rules. On page D-3, "A Short Course in Cable" provides a concise summary of the industry. The cable listings provide the system name, address and phone number, names of principal executives, area served, type of TV market, statistical data, channel usage, information about pay cable and other types of programing, and ownership. Also in this section are a directory of Multiple System Operators (MSO's) on page D-318, a list of Broadcasters in Cable, a list of newspapers using cable TV, a chart of the Top-50 MSO's, and a chart of cable penetration by market.

Section E— The section on Satellites begins with the list of satellites currently used by North American owners and operators. Included in the section are lists of satellite owners and operators, resale and common carriers, programers and networks. Next are listings for direct broadcast satellites, basic and pay cable program services, and superstations.

Section F— This is the Programing section of the Yearbook. First is a directory of producers, distributors, and production services, followed by a list of international program producers. Addresses, telephone numbers, and names of principal executives accompany the listings. Other program-related material includes sections on music licensing groups, closed circuit TV, and major awards. Major network directories with radio and TV affiliates begin on page F-35. Next are sections on public broadcasting; Canadian networks; regional radio and TV networks and news services. Section F concludes with radio station listings according to formats and special programing.

Section G— The Advertising and Marketing section presents directories of advertising agencies handling major radio and TV accounts, media/planning services, U.S. and Canadian station representatives, and Industry Standard Commercial Identification System. Listings include address, telephone number, principal executives and branch offices. The section concludes with tables that provide information about radio and TV audiences, audience composition, and set usage.

Section H— This, the "Technology" section, begins with a list of U.S. and international equipment manufacturers and distributors, and continues with listings of frequency measuring services, videotext operations, teletext operations, videotext and teletext software and hardware suppliers, automated-channel suppliers, broadcast automation systems, and a directory of companies providing mobile production services. These listings include addresses, telephone numbers, and names of principal executives. Next are lists of common carriers including land line, microwave & multipoint distribution services. On page H-54 a chart shows the growth of broadcasting, and on page H-56 a chart shows television and radio set sales from 1958-1983. The last part of Section H begins on page H-57 with the 1985 Buyer's Guide, the yellow pages, a commercial directory to both equipment and broadcast services.

Section I— is divided into three parts—Professional Services, Associations, and Broadcast Education. Part one provides listings of brokers and consultants, station financing firms, research services, technical consultants, law firms and attorneys in communications law, public relations services, talent agents, and employment services. Part two, Associations, begins on page I-52 with the National Association of Broadcasters and includes trade organizations, professional associations and societies, and unions. Broadcast Education, part three, opens on page I-68 with broadcasting schools. The section continues with reviews of recently published books related to the Fifth Estate. Section I concludes with a list of colleges and universities offering degrees and courses in radio and television.

A Glossary of Terms Used in Yearbook

Basic cable service—Package of cable programing provided to subscribers without additional fee.

Cable television—System that transmits original programing, and programing of broadcast television stations, to consumers over wired network (see page A-6).

Clear channel—AM radio station allowed to dominate its frequency with up to 50 kw of power; their signals are generally protected for distance of up to 750 miles at night.

Coaxial cable—Cable with several common axis lines under protective sheath used for television signal transmissions.

CC—Closed captioning. Method of transmitting textual information over television channel's vertical blanking interval; transmissions are deciphered with decoders; decoded transmissions appear as text superimposed over television image.

CED—Capacitance electronic disk (RCA videodisk).

Common carrier—Telecommunications company that provides communications transmission services to public.

DBS—Direct broadcast satellite. High powered satellite authorized to broadcast direct to homes (see page A-7).

Domsat—Domestic satellite (see page A-6).

Downlink—Earth station used to receive signals from satellites.

Earth station—Equipment used for transmitting or receiving satellite communications.

EFT—Electronic funds transfer.

EM—Electronic mail.

ENG—Electronic news gathering.

ETV—Educational television.

Footprint—Area on earth within which satellite's signal can be received.

Geostationary orbit—Orbit 22,300 miles above earth's equator where satellites circle earth at same rate earth rotates.

Ghz—Gigahertz. 1,000 megahertz.

HDTV—High-definition television (see page A-7).

Headend—Facility in cable system from which all signals originate. (Local and distant television stations, and satellite programing, are picked up and amplified for retransmission through system.)

Hertz—A unit of frequency equal to one cycle per second. One kilohertz is 1,000 hertz; one megahertz is one million hertz; one gigahertz is one billion hertz.

HUT—Households using television.

ITFS—Instructional Television Fixed Service (see page A-7).

Khz—Kilohertz (see Hertz).

LED—Light emitting diode. Type of semiconductor that lights up when activated by voltage.

LO—Local origination channel.

LPTV—Low-power television (see page A-7).

LV—LaserVision (optical videodisk).

MATV—Master antenna television. Delivery method for pay programing to multi-unit dwellings.

MDS—Multipoint distribution service (see page A-7).

Mhz—Megahertz (see Hertz).

Microwave—Frequencies above 1,000 mhz.

MSO—Multiple cable system operator.

NTSC—National Television System Committee. Committee that recommended current American standard for color TV.

PCM—Pulse code modulation. Conversion of voice signals into digital code.

PPV—Pay-per-view.

PSA—Public service announcement.

PTV—Public television.

RCC—Radio common carrier. Common carriers whose major businesses include radio paging and mobile telephone services.

SCA—Subsidiary communications authorizations. Authorizations granted to FM broadcasters for using subcarriers on their channels for other communications services.

Shortwave—Transmissions on frequencies of 6-25 mhz.

SHF—Super high frequency.

SMATV—Satellite master antenna television (see page A-7).

STV—Subscription television (see page A-6).

Superstation—Local TV station whose signal is retransmitted via satellite to cable systems beyond reach of over-the-air signal.

Tariff—Common carrier's statement describing services it offers and rates it charges.

Teletext—One-way electronic publishing service (see page A-7).

Translator—Broadcast station that rebroadcasts signals of other stations without originating its own programing.

Transponder—Satellite transmitter/receiver that picks up signals transmitted from earth, translates them into new frequency and amplifies them before retransmitting them back to ground.

UHF—Ultra high frequency.

Uplink—Earth station used for transmitting to satellite.

VCR—Videocassette recorder.

IN TV SALES TODAY, BEING SMART AND AGGRESSIVE IS NOT ENOUGH.

Companies all over the country are realizing a third ingredient is necessary.

Professional training. To raise performance to the higher levels demanded in today's competitive world. That's why companies all over the country are turning to Martin Antonelli. He knows how to train TV salespeople who produce.

People trained at the Antonelli Media Training Center know how to sell specials and sports and how to increase share.

They know how to research the competition, develop selling strategies and make persuasive presentations. They produce because they know the business from local sales to the rating book to closing the sale.

Many of the industry's smartest, most bottom-line oriented companies are making this investment in their staff's productivity.

Antonelli graduates now successfully sell time for Katz, Blair, Petry, MMT, TeleRep, Seltel, Taft, Cox, Metromedia, WPIX, WSB, WNEV, and KTTV.

There are two ways to get salespeople with this kind of intensive training working for you. You can hire our graduates (just call with your job opening).

Or you can hire us. We will train all levels of your staff from salesperson to sales manager. Training can be at our facility or yours. Either way, we believe you'll see the dramatic improvements many others have seen.

For more information, call today. After all, if you want to travel at full-speed, you can't have an engine going at half-speed.

the advice and consent of the Senate. Under legislation passed in 1982, the FCC was cut back to five commissioners in June 1983.

FCC Broadcast Regulation

One of the FCC's major activities is the regulation of broadcasting. This has three phases.

The first is the allocation of space in the radio frequency spectrum to the broadcast services and to many nonbroadcast services which also must be accommodated. In view of the tremendously increased use of radio technology in recent decades, the competing demands for frequencies are among the commission's most pressing problems. Fortunately, as technology has advanced, frequencies higher and higher in the spectrum have become usable. Apart from the frequencies used for broadcasting, frequencies in other portions of the spectrum are allocated for "broadcast auxiliary" use by remote pickup and other transmitters auxiliary to main broadcast stations (see Auxiliary Broadcast Services).

The second phase of regulation is the assignment of stations in each service within the allocated frequency bands, with specific location, frequency and power. The chief consideration, although by no means the only one, is to avoid interference with other stations on the same channel (frequency) or channels adjacent in the spectrum. If an application is granted, the applicant for a new station or for changed facilities receives a construction permit. Later, when the station is built and it is capable of operating as proposed, a license to operate is issued.

The third phase is regulation of existing stations: inspection to see that stations are operating in accordance with FCC rules and technical provisions of their authorizations, modifying the authorizations when necessary, assigning station call letters, licensing transmitter operators, processing requests to assign the station license to another party or transfer control of the licensee corporation, and processing applications for renewal of license. At renewal time, the commission reviews the station's record to see if it is operating in the public interest.

The Nature of American Broadcasting

Although educational and other noncommercial stations share the airwaves, the American broadcasting system for the most part is a commercial system. In this respect it is supported by revenues from those who advertise goods or services to the audience. Advertising messages are presented as commercial "spot announcements" before, during, and after programs, or as a part of "sponsored" programs.

Broadcast stations are licensed to serve the public interest, convenience and necessity. By law, each license must contain a statement that the licensee does not have any right to operate the station or use the frequency beyond the term of license. The maximum term of license for a radio station is seven years; the maximum term of license for a television station is five years.

Under requirements of the Communications Act, applicants must be legally, technically and financially qualified, and they must show that their proposed operation would be in the public interest. They must be citizens of the United States. Corporations with alien officers or directors or with more than one-fifth of the capital stock controlled by foreign interests may not be licensed.

Penalties for broadcast station violations, depending upon the degree of seriousness, range from reprimands, fines up to $10,000, and short-term probationary licenses to denial of license renewal, or even license revocation. Cease-and-desist orders may also be issued.

In 1965, the commission provided for public inspection of certain records of broadcast stations in the communities they serve. These are mainly duplicate copies of records in the public files of the commission in Washington, and include licenses, records of ownership, applications to the FCC and related material, network affiliation contracts and employment reports.

The commission is forbidden by law from censoring programs. The Communications Act, Section 326, states: "Nothing in this Act shall be understood or construed to give the commission the power of censorship over the radio communications of signals transmitted by any radio station, and no regulation or condition shall be promulgated or fixed by the commission which shall interfere with the right of free speech by means of radio communication."

Fairness—The commision had held that when a station presents one viewpoint on a controversial public

A short course in broadcasting, 1985

There were 9,642 radio stations operating in the United States at the end of 1984. Of these, 4,754 were commercial AM's, 3,716 were commercial FM's and 1,172 were noncommercial FM's, There were 1,194 operating television stations: 539 commercial VHF's, 365 commercial UHF's, 114 noncommercial VHF's and 176 noncommercial UHF's. Most commercial TV's are network affiliated; approximately 250 operate as independents.

No single entity may own more than 12 stations in each service (AM, FM or TV). In TV, the entity is permitted to own 12 TV stations as long as they don't reach more than 25% of the nation's television homes. UHF's are assessed for only half of a market's television homes. Group broadcasters who buy interests in stations more than half owned by minorities are able to own up to 14 stations in a service, and are able to reach 30% of the nation's television households through their TV's, as long as two of the stations in each service are controlled by minorities. Newspaper owners may no longer purchase broadcast properties in the same market, nor may radio station owners acquire TV stations there, nor TV owners radio outlets. TV stations may no longer acquire cable TV franchises in the same city, and networks may not own cable systems at all.

In 1983, according to estimates by the Television Bureau of Advertising and the Radio Advertising Bureau, commercial broadcasting had total advertising revenues of approximately $21.3 billion. Television advertising accounted for $16.1 billion (75.6%) of revenues; radio advertising, for approximately $5.2 billion (24.4%). Public broadcasting had a 1983 income of $899.2 million—18.2% from the federal government.

In 1983 television billing for stations and networks amounted to $7,017,000,000 (national network), $4,796,000,000 (national non-network), and $4,323,000,000 (local), according to estimates by the Television Bureau of Advertising. The Radio Advertising Bureau estimated radio billings for stations and networks were $253,500,000 (national network), $1,022,800,000 (national non-network), and $3,739,000,000 (local).

There are more than 85 million U.S. homes (98% of all homes) with television sets, about 55% of which have more than one set. About 77 million homes have color. It is estimated that about 96% of TV homes can receive UHF signals, and that about 40% are linked with cable systems, according to Arbitron Television. (Further data on cable TV appears in "A short course in cable, 1985" on page D-3.) There are an estimated 479 million radio sets in the U.S., 355 million (74%) of them in homes and 124 million (26%) out of homes.

The average American home watches TV for seven hours and eight minutes a day, according to A.C. Nielsen statistics for the calendar year 1984. And the latest study by The Roper Organization (commissioned by the Television Information Office) shows that 65% of the U.S. public turns to TV as the source of most of its news, and that 53% ranks it as the most believable news source.

The average 30-second prime-time network television announcement now costs $100,000 (spots on a top-rated series cost $200,000; low-rated spots average about $50,000). An estimated 110 million people watched the 1985 Super Bowl telecast. Thirty-second announcements during that event cost $525,000. Thirty-second announcements on individual TV stations range from $15,000 in top-rated specials in major markets to as low as $10 in the second-hundred markets. Radio spots cost from $1,000 or more in major markets to less than a dollar in small towns.

Group Ownership

Listed here are individuals and companies with multiple station holdings. Included are all those controlling three or more radio stations and/or two or more television stations. FCC rules limit multiple ownership to 12 AM stations, 12 FM stations and 12 television stations, as long as the 12 TV stations don't reach more than 25% of the nation's television homes. UHF's are assessed for only half of a market's television homes. Group broadcasters may own up to 14 stations in a service if two of the stations in each service are controlled by minorities. Ownership of cable TV systems, as reported by these stations, is also listed. Unless otherwise noted, the first station listed is group headquarters.

Radio Free Europe, AFRTS, County or Market Size

Board for International Broadcasting

1201 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Suite 1100, Washington 20036. (202) 254-8040. Established by Congress in 1973, the board evaluates and makes grants to Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty and assures that funds are applied consistently with the broad foreign policy objectives of the United States government. Board members are Frank J. Shakespeare, chmn; Charles D. Ablard, Mark I. Goode, Thomas H. Quinn, Ben J. Wattenberg; ex officio: James L. Buckley; staff: Walter R. Roberts, exec dir; James Critchlow, rsch off; Anatole Shub, prog off; Arthur D. Levin, financial mgr.

Armed Forces Radio and Television Service

AFRTS operates over 800 radio and television outlets located in more than 50 foreign countries, remote areas of Alaska, U.S. trusts, territories and possessions, and aboard Navy ships. Most of the land-based stations are grouped into regional AFRTS networks to serve specific geographical areas (for example, American Forces Network-Europe in Europe and Far East Network in the Pacific). These AFRTS networks and independent stations create their own individual radio and television program schedules from broadcast materials provided by the AFRTS BroadcastCenter in Los Angeles and from their own local productions. Some outlets are broadcast operations and some carried on closed circuit systems of various types. Domestic and Intelsat satellite service is leased on a 24 hour-a-day basis and provides real-time stateside radio and TV to certain overseas locations.

HQ AFRTS. AFRTS is the broadcast arm of the American Forces Information Service located at 1735 N. Lynn St., Arlington, Va. 22209. (202) 696-5280. Melvin Russell, asst dir, AFRTS; Lieutenant Colonel Lawrence Pollack, opns mgr; Lieutenant Colonel Peter Satterlee, field opns.

AFRTS Broadcast Center-Los Angeles. 1016 N. McCadden Pl., Los Angeles 90038. (213) 467-3561. Colonel David Cole, dir; Lieutenant Colonel Bruce Eaton, deputy dir; Gerry Fry, dir of progmg; Vince Harris, industry liaison.

Radio City of License with County or Market Population

The following is an alphageographical listing of every city of license with a commercial radio station. The middle column is the county, and the last column is the population of the county. Population figures followed by an asterisk represent metropolitan markets which include more than one county. The figures are from the Bureau of the Census and Standard Rate and Data Service.

World Radio and Television

The following summarizes radio and television broadcasting around the world. Stations and transmitters used for international and armed forces programs are included. Transmitter counts for each country are for main transmitters and often include low power relays, repeaters, satellites and/or translators. Where current information is not available, radio set counts have been estimated by Broadcasting.

Note: Domestic radio stations in foreign countries often use shortwave and longwave frequencies, as well as the medium wave frequencies corresponding with the standard AM broadcast band in the U.S. Longwave (lw) frequencies below 500 khz are generally used in Europe, Africa, the Middle East, and Asiatic U.S.S.R. Medium wave (mw) frequencies are between 500 and 1600 khz and are used on all continents. Shortwave (sw) frequencies are between 1600 and 30,000 khz and are used for domestic broadcasting on all continents, especially in tropical areas. On long, medium, and shortwave, the mode of transmission is amplitude modulation (AM). Most foreign frequency modulation (FM) radio broadcasting is on the same frequencies as those used in the U.S., although some countries use a band between 60 and 88 mhz.

Unless shown as commercial (coml), government broadcasting activity identified below is without advertising. Some independent broadcasting organizations, such as the BBC, operate under statutory authority and are so identified. Statutory, nongovernmental broadcasting may be supported by receiver license fees, advertising, subsidies, or a combination.

(1) Channel, power and antenna. WOF-TV operates with 200 kilowatts (effective radiated power) visual and 20 kilowatts aural. Its antenna is 500 feet above average terrain and 300 feet above the ground; it holds a construction permit for a height increase.

(2) Date station first went on air (regardless of subsequent ownership changes).

(3) Address and zip code, telephone, Teletype Writer Exchange number.

(4) Licensee name and date of acquisition (if not original owner).

(5) Ownership. Acme Stations owns WOF-TV and several other broadcast properties, all detailed in the Group Ownership directory in section A. The station additionally has print media connections, explained in the Newspaper directory (also in section A). Principal stockholders are listed for independently owned stations.

(6) Network, foreign language, rep and Washington attorney. The primary WOF-TV national affiliate is CBS, the secondary is NBC. The station broadcasts two hours of Spanish a week. Sales representatives are listed with national rep first, then regional.

(7) Personnel.

(8) Cable and translators. WOF-TV is carried on six cable TV systems with a total of 20,000 subscribers, and on 10 rebroadcasting translators.

(9) Co-owned radio. WOF-TV has the same licensee as WOF-AM-FM.

(10) Advertising rates. The prices the station charges national advertisers for a 30-second spot are shown for each of three dayparts:

Prime time; early fringe; daytime in that order. If a day-part is inapplicable a dash (—) replaces the rate.

* An asterisk indicates noncommercial stations.

WBNB-TV Charlotte Amalie (ch 10)—Licensed to Caribbean Broadcasting (Thomas Worrell Jr., principal owner of Worrell Newspapers Inc., newspaper chain and owner of WIFR-TV Freeport, Ill., and WHSV-TV Harrisonburg, Va.). Sold by: Island Teleradio Service Inc. (owned by District Communications: Theodore Ledbetter Jr., 9%; Cleveland L. Dennard, 21.2%; Jeanus B. Parks Jr., 18.2%; Samuel C. Jackson, 15.2%). Sales price: $750,000. FCC approved: June 6, 1980 ("Changing Hands," June 14, 1980). Previous owner: Island Teleradio Service Inc. (owned by Federated Media Inc.). Sales price: $991,127. FCC approved: Sept. 6, 1974 [For the Record, Sept. 30, 1974]. Note: Began operation in 1961. Original owners (Robert Moss, Robert Noble, Faye Russell and Kenneth Granger) sold station to Television Communications Corp. in 1970 for $750,100 [BROADCASTING, May 11, 1970]. When Television Communications Corp. sold its cable TV business to Warner Communications Inc. in 1972, individual stockholders of Television Communications Corp. (formed into a company known as Federated Media Inc.) acquired WBNB-TV [BROADCASTING, Feb. 7, 1972].

Television Marketplace

The ADI Market Atlas

The Area of Dominant Influence is a geographic market design that defines each television market exclusive of the others, based on measurable viewing patterns. Each market's ADI consists of all counties in which the home market stations receive a preponderance of viewing, and every county in the U.S. (excluding Hawaii and Alaska) is allocated exclusively to only one ADI—there is no overlap. The total of all ADI's represents the total television households in the U.S.

The ADI is a standard market definition. As a television buying tool it is a geographic and demographic means for maximum efficiency. As a station tool it has applications for sales, programing and promotion planning.

Following, in alphabetical order, are Arbitron Television's 211 ADI markets for 1984-85, with coverage maps for each; and county-by-county breakouts of TV households. Other data include the market's stations, and their cities of license, channel numbers and network affiliations.

Coverage maps show total survey areas in white, the ADI's themselves in light crosshatching, and Arbitron Metro Rating Areas in heavier crosshatching. The survey areas consist of all counties in which the home market stations are viewed to any significant extent, including via cable. The Metro Areas, usually conform to the U.S. Census Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

Supplementary markets do not meet Arbitron's criteria for having an ADI of their own; they are listed in this atlas next to the ADI of which they are a part.

A complete list of the supplementary markets appears on page C-142 and a cross-reference list for cities in a multi-city ADI on C-206.

Supplementary markets

The following supplementary markets have no ADI. Reports for these non-ADI markets may be produced in the November, February and/or May surveys. Data on each market is listed in the surrounding atlas adjacent to the ADI in which it falls. TV household estimates for supplementary markets are nonadditive, since these markets are composed of counties which are a part of other markets' ADI's.

TV Markets by Nielsen Marketing Research Territory

Nielsen Marketing Research territory groupings are another standard way of reporting sales data. The following table ranks TV markets within each Nielsen Territory. This provides a yardstick for determining the number of spot markets needed to achieve a given coverage of a territory. For example, if the national media re not delivering sufficient advertising weight in New England, the planner will find that three TV markets (Boston, Hartford and Providence) contain almost 80% of the New England territory households. Or, he can use the table to get a better idea of how and what TV markets are needed to cover all of New England. Data is from special Nielsen Station Index tabulation based on a January 1985 estimate.

How Network Delivery Varies by Market

National advertisers use spot television to increase network advertising weight in specific markets to achieve a predetermined level. These market goals are derived from the advertising budget and the market's share of the brand's projected sales. Thus, a spot schedule is usually indicated where a market has an unusually high brand-sales potential, or where the network weight delivered for the brand is below the national average used in planning, or both.

The first factor, market brand potential, varies by product and is difficult to generalize. The second factor, local-market network audiences, must be generalized because planning is based upn next season's anticipated network performance. The prevalance of network "package" buys, which tend to deliver average audience levels, supports the use of average data.

The following tabulation, chosen especially for the BROADCASTING/CABLECASTING YEARBOOK, shows Arbitron Televsion's Areas of Dominant Influence (ADI) in terms of percent of the total number of U.S. TV households. Also given, in like percentage terms, are the network audiences in each ADI market during prime-time hours. It is this market audience figure, when compared to the market's share of the population, that indicate whether the network commitment will perform above or below the national plan average in that market.

The figures are based on Anbtron Television's May 1984 Network Program Group Analysis.

the economic relationship between television broadcasting and cable television (Docket 21284). In April 1979, on the basis of its economic inquiry Report which concluded that elimination of the distant signal carriage restrictions would benefits consumers without harming the ability of broadcast stations to meet their public interest responsibilities, the commission issued a notice of proposed rulemaking to delete these rules. In July 1980 the commission adopted the recommendations in Report and Order in Dockets 21284 and 20988, 79 FCC 2d 652 (1980). The rule changes became effective July 7, 1981, following affirmation of the commission's decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Malrite T.V. of New York, Inc. et al. v. FCC and USA, 652 F. 2d 1140 (2nd Cir. 1981). cert denied, 50 U.S.L.W. 3547 (1982).

In November 1976, the commission began an inquiry (Docket 20988) to reevaluate the syndicated exclusivity rules by examining the following options: deletion of the rules; expansion of their applicability to smaller markets; revision of criteria; or retention of the present rules. In April 1979, the commission adopted a Report on the syndicated exclusivity rules and issued a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking in Dockets 20988 and 21284 in which it proposed to delete the rules. In July 22, 1980, the commission decided to delete the syndicated program exclusivity rules in thier entirety. These rule changes became effective ion July 7, 1981, following affirmation of the commission's decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Malrite T.V. of New York, Inc. et al. v. FCC and USA, 652 F. 2d 1140 (2nd Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 50 U.S.L.W. 3547 (1982).

Of the remaining cable rules perhaps the most important are the "must carry" rules. In communities located outside of all markets, cable systems must carry signals from the following sources: all stations within whose Grade B signal contour the system community is located; commercial translator stations with 100 watts or higher power and noncommercial translators with 5 watts or higher power serving the community; stations whose signals are significantly viewed in the community; all educational stations licensed to communities within 35 miles of the system community.

The signal carriage rules do not require a cable operator to carry the subscription, or scrambled programing portion of a subscription television station (STV). If the station qualified for mandatory carriage, however, the cable operator would be obliged to carry, on requests, the unscrambled portion of the signal.

The commission first adopted access rules in 1972, requiring systems in the top-100 television markets to provide four dedicated channels for access (one each for public, educational, governmental, and leased access). In 1969 the commission had adopted a requirement that cable systems also originate programing but stayed this rule in 1971. In 1974 the commission deleted the origination requirement, and in 1976 it revised the access rules. The revised rules, required that all systems with 3,500 or more subscribers, regardless of market, provide up to four access channels only if they had sufficient activated channel capability to do so and if there were a demand for full-time use of the channels. Otherwise, they were required to provide at least one composite, or combined access, channel. Provisions regarding equipment availability, charges for channel use, and local operating rules were also contained in the former FCC rules.

As a result of a U.S. Supreme Court decision on April 2, 1979, the FCC no longer requires any cable television operator to provide channels or equipment for public, educational, governmental or leased access use nor to provide a certain channel capacity. In its decision in FCC v. Midwest Video Corp., 440 U.S. 689 (1979), the Court held that the access requirements exceeded the FCC's jurisdiction because they imposed common-carrier obligations on cable operators.

As a result of another court decision, in NARUC v. FCC, 533 F. 2d 601 (D.C.) Cir. 1976), the FCC no longer regulates intrastate two-way, point-to-point nonvideo cable transmissions. State and local authorities, therefore, may regulate cable transmissions of data and other nonvideo programming.

Although the rules do not require cable operators to originate programing nor to provide access channels. Operators who originate programing, however, are required to comply with the FCC's rules on cablecasts by candidates for public office, the Fairness Doctrine, lotteries, and sponsorship identification.

The rules also prohibit a cable operator from using origination channels to cablecast obscene or indecent material. The restriction, however, applies only to programing subject to the exclusive control of the cable operator. Although programing of cable networks is "originated," cable operators usually cannot easily exert editorial control over its content. Furthermore, the preemption of regulation of pay cable fees prevents the imposition of local sanctions on such channels. On the other hand, requirements regarding access channels are often the subject of franchise agreements and local regulation. No federal rules relate to access channels.

Cable operators frequently identify access and origination channels by single or double letters or by some other method to avoid confusion with broadcast stations' call letters. In a policy statement issued October 8, 1976, on problems that could arise from the method or lack of identification of cablecast channels, the FCC recommended that cable operators do not use broadcast call letters for such purpose.

Cable systems frequently offer pay cable services, on a per-program or per channel basis, to supplement the basic retransmission service. Included are feature films, sports events or regional or national interests, and entertainment programs specifically produced for the cable audience.

Two recent Federal Circuit decisions involved the FCC's jurisdiction to regulate pay cable. In Home Box Office Inv. v. FCC, 567 F. 2d 9, cert. denied, 434 U.S. 829 (D.C. Cir. 1977), the court overturned the FCC's pay cable program content rules because of failure to demonstrate a genuine problem which required regulation. The FCC does not now regulate pay cable program content.

In Brookhaven Cable TV Inc. v. Kelly, 573 F. 2d 765 (2d Cir. 1978), cert. denied. 99 S. Ct. 1991 (1979), the court affirmed a lower court finding that FCC preemption of pay cable rates precluded the New York State Commission on Cable Television from regulating such rates. The court found that FCC preemption in this area was clearly asserted and within its jurisdiction.

All operators of cable systems serving 1,000 or more subscribers must have a current copy of the commission's cable television rules. In addition, the operators must maintain locally for public inspection a copy of the franchise, application(s) to the FCC including any petitions for special relief or show cuase, FCC annual reports and related documents, and any application for transfer of control of a cable television relay station that may serve the system.

A short course in cable, 1985

There are 6,600 operating cable systems in the U.S., serving some 18,500 communities. Another 1,600 franchises are approved but not built. Texas has the most systems (500) and California the most subscribers (3.2 million). Operating systems currently reach about 37.3 million subscribers, perhaps over 104 million people—43.7% of the nation's TV households. The largest (Cox Cable in San Diego has about 235,00 subscribers. Some have fewer than 100. Tele-Comunications Inc. is the largest multiple system operator (MSO), with more than 2,700,000 subscribers. Industry revenues last year totaled approximately $3.6 billion. Most systems offer 12 channels. Systems constructed after March 1972 must have a minimum 20-channel capacity. The average monthly fee (basic service) is $9. Costs of laying cable range from $10,000 per mile in rural areas to $20,000 in urban areas and up to $100,000 where underground cable is required. An estimated 3,700 systems originate programing in their own studios, the average for 23 hours weekly. Equipment costs are as low as $30,000 for a small black and white operation and $200,000 for a color studio. Over 990 systems (15% of all systems) accept advertising on their local origination channels (excluding automated channels), with rates from $2 to $250 per 30-second spot. Most cable systems derive less than 5% of their gross revenues from advertising. Pay cable is on approximately 5,400 systems and reaches 31 million subscribers in 50 states. Most pay cable operators are reporting close to 60% penetration of their subscriber count. Home Box Office Inc. initiated the first national satellite interconnected pay network Sept. 30, 1975, using transponder time leased on the Satcom satellite. Aside from contracting for packaged pay programs, like HBO, cable operators can lease a channel to a pay program operator or secure their own programing directly from a supplier. Almost 32% of all cable sysems have ties with broadcast interests, over 20% with program producers and approximately 18% with newspapers. Many systems have multiple cross-ownership ties.
